

You have the right to receive a “Good Faith Estimate” explaining how much your medical care will cost

Under the law, health care providers need to give patients who don’t have insurance or who are not using insurance an estimate of the bill for medical items and services.

If you are an uninsured or self-pay medical patient, you have the right to receive a Good Faith Estimate for the total expected cost of any non-emergency health care items or services. This includes related costs like medical tests, prescription drugs, equipment, and hospital fees.

If you schedule your health care item or service at least 3 business days in advance, make sure your health care provider gives you a Good Faith Estimate before your item or service. If you schedule less than 3 business days in advance, a Good Faith Estimate may not be available in advance.

You can also ask any health care provider or facility for a Good Faith Estimate before you schedule an item or service.

If you receive a bill that is at least $400 more than your Good Faith Estimate, you can dispute the bill.

Make sure to save a copy or picture of your Good Faith Estimate.
